About Me

I'm studying diploma in computer science at Tangail Polytechnic institute. I am passionate about coding, web design, and development. I enjoy learning new skills through various online sources. I am skilled in WordPress website design, development, and customization and have expertise in pure programming for web design as well. Currently, I am focusing on web development, and I have chosen to learn the MERN stack, which includes React and other related technologies. With these skills, I am confident in my ability to tackle various personal projects and take on new challenges in the field of web development.
